Excerpt from Illustrations of New Species of Exotic Butterflies, Vol. 1: Selected Chiefly From the Collections of W. Wilson Saunders and William C. Hewitson Although the first volume of the Exotic Butterflies, which is now brought to a close, has not succeeded in a pecuniary point of view, we do not hesitate to proceed with a second having abundant materials with which to fill its pages - willing to consider any loss which we may sustain as a slight contribution towards the advancement of our favourite science, and unwilling that the many beautiful things which have delighted our own eyes should not also be enjoyed by our brother naturalists. Two hundred and seventeen butterflies have been figured as new and distinct species, and I believe they will stand the test of close examination. No one can deprecate more than I do the needless multiplication of species in which some of the naturalists (especially ornithologists) of the present day, both in France and England, seem to take so much pleasure, who, with the knowledge always before them that certain species vary ad infinitum, that others are cosmopolitan in their range, nevertheless take some extra spot of colour, aided by some slight geographical separation, as sufficient ground upon which to erect a species. I have, however, learned to give great deference to the opinion of any one who may be closely studying some particular group, having myself come to a decision with regard to some of the Ithomias, which I have afterwards reversed upon nearer acquaintance with them, wondering at my own want of acumen; indeed, so intimate have I become with specimens in my own cabinet, as to...
